Nomani was born in India and raised in the United States. She began wearing the hijab, or headscarf, as a teenager, and she faced discrimination and prejudice as a result. After 9/11, the discrimination she experienced only intensified. She was bullied as a child, and as an adult, she was denied jobs and even threatened with violence.

Despite the challenges she faced, Nomani refused to be silenced. She became a vocal advocate for Muslim rights and spoke out against Islamophobia. She also founded the Muslim Women's Leadership Circle, which is a non-profit organization that supports Muslim women's leadership development.

Am Muslim And Say is a powerful and inspiring memoir that offers a unique perspective on the challenges and triumphs of being a Muslim in America today. Nomani's story is a reminder that despite the prejudice and discrimination that many Muslims face, they are still proud and vibrant members of American society.

Quotes from Am Muslim And Say

"I am a Muslim, but I am also an American. I am proud of both of these identities, and I will not let anyone tell me that I have to choose between them." - Asra Nomani

"I will not be silenced. I will not be afraid. I will speak out against injustice, even when it is unpopular." - Asra Nomani

"I am hopeful for the future of America. I believe that we can build a more just and inclusive society for all." - Asra Nomani
