The story of Our Lady of Guadalupe begins in 1531, in the humble village of Tepeyac, just outside Mexico City. On December 9th, a young Aztec peasant named Juan Diego witnessed a miraculous apparition of a beautiful lady. The lady identified herself as the Virgin Mary, the Mother of God, and instructed Juan Diego to build a church on that spot in her name.

At first, Juan Diego's claims were met with skepticism. However, when he returned to the site of the apparition with a rose bush that had miraculously bloomed out of season, the local bishop was convinced. A small chapel was erected on the site, and soon pilgrims began to flock to Tepeyac to venerate the holy image.

Over the centuries, the image of Our Lady of Guadalupe has become deeply embedded in Mexican culture and spirituality. She is revered as the patron saint of Mexico and is also honored in many other countries
